

Allan Gurganus has been published in The New Yorker, Harper's and the New York Times, and his stories have appeared in O'Henry Prize Stories, Best American Stories, The Norton Anthology of Short Fiction and Best New Stories of the South. His first book, Oldest Living Confederate Widow Tells All, spent eight months on the New York Times bestseller list. His collection of short stories and novellas, White People, won the Los Angeles Times Book Prize, and The Practical Heart: Four Novellas won the Lambda Literary Award.

Gurganus first trained as a painter, and he began writing as a soldier during the Vietnam War. He graduated from Sarah Lawrence College and the Iowa Writers' Workshop, where his mentors were Stanley Elkin and John Cheever. He has since taught writing and literature at Stanford, Duke, Sarah Lawrence and the Iowa Writers' Workshop.

THE CENTER FOR MEDICAL HUMANITIES & ETHICS

The Center for
Medical Humanities & Ethics
Presents

The 2007 Ewing Halsell
Distinguished Lecture

Allan Gurganus:
Readings and Reflections

Wednesday, September 5, 2007
7 – 8 p.m.

(Reception 6:30 p.m.)

UT Health Science Center at San Antonio

Room 3.102

